Chaliapin Thrills Opera Audience in the Role of Boris

Second Week of Season Starts Brilliantly With Moussorgsky's Work Repeated.

By W. J. HENDERSON.

pera at the Metropolitan Opera House began last evening with the first repe tition of a work already heard. The first Monday night audience, which son, was permitted to enjoy a performance of "Tosca" with Mme, Marie Jeritza as the heroine. The second Monday audience, also a brilliant assembly, sat last evening under the spell of Feodor Challapin's thrilling impersonation of the remorseful usurper in Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunov."
